

The Albion, Liskeard

The Albion pub is located on a busy road in Liskeard town centre. It is a popular establishment with both locals and tourists. The SI team were asked to carry out an investigation on 19th October 2007 by the landlady. She and her family had experienced some strange phenomena both downstairs in the bar and upstairs where they lived.

The team started off upstairs in the living quarters. In the lounge the team detected 3 presences from 1860s. One male and two females were sensed via dowsing and it was felt that they were a family group who used to live in the house. The team discovered a very oppressive and negative energy in the bathroom. Cold blasts of air were felt when the cupboard door was opened and a feeling that someone was rushing out of the doorway. The dowzers picked up on two males and a female who were embroiled in a love triangle. One of the males murdered the other because of their relationship with this woman. It was felt that he had pushed the man out of the window and fell to his death. In the main bedroom the presence of a little girl was sensed. She had been very sickly in life and was unable to go outside and play with the other children. She died of pneumonia in 1900s. An elderly gentleman was also picked up by the dowzers. He had died in his bed peacefully and was nursed by a female member of his family.

The team then moved downstairs to investigate the bar area. The dowzers picked up on an elderly couple who used to drink in the pub. They come here in visitation. A male presence was also discovered. He had been stabbed after a fight in 1920s. A second male was sensed standing in the main doorway he had died of a heart attack after spending in the evening in the pub. He had been a regular to the pub and even had his own bar stool.

The cellar seemed to hold an angry and oppressive male energy. It was very negative and didn't want us in this small space. The beer cellar was directly under the bathroom window and the team felt that this male presence was the same one sensed in the bathroom upstairs. When we asked this presence to show us a sign and make a noise, a loud crashing noise was heard back in the bar – no obvious reason could be found for this as nothing was out of place.

In the hallway from the bar to the back door and toilets, the presence of a little girl was sensed. She had died aged 9 years old in 1860s after suffering headaches all her life. We sensed her playing in what would have been her back garden. The presence of horses was also detected in this area.

At the end of the night a séance was held to try and build energy. Although the team protected all participants with white light energy, a negative and oppressive energy was felt by all in circle. It was quite draining on the group and seemed to make us all feel very tired. We persevered for a while but soon brought the séance to a close.
